

Annual Report HIRRA Hall Committee 2012

Last year my report gave a short history of the Hall, from 1926 until the present.

The hall has been in continuous use by the community for 86 years, with time out for renovations every so often.

It seems that the need for renovations will never end, although this past year we have not done any major projects.

The next project which has been sitting on the back burner for a few years now is to replace the septic system.

This project has been postponed because the use of the hall has changed during this past year. No café, no Sunday evening cabarets, and few movie nights. However a new septic system is still on the plan, and we have the funds for it set aside.

There have been some headaches with the heat pump, and it is still difficult to heat the hall adequately during the very cold months. This is an ongoing project, and there will be some changes made to the heating system.

I would like to thank the members of the committee, Joanne, Derek, Tim, and Paul. Derek has spent many years on the Hall committee, and we hate to see him go. I think he has had enough of the firewood detail. Thanks to Joanne, for her work as treasurer, we'll miss her too.

And thanks also to the members of the community who use the hall and do it with care.

Respectfully submitted
Judith Lawrence, chair
